Network Support

Today, network infrastructure is integral to business operational efficiency. Without a reliable network, data is threatened by external hazards such as bugs, viruses and spyware. In-house obstacles like redundant or irrelevant software can lead to congestion and lessen network infrastructure reliability. Nothing is more debilitating than damage to your computer systems, software or data.

Data Security

Data derived from exploration and mining activities is your company's primary asset. It is amazing how often significant amounts of money are spent on capturing data whilst ignoring the importance of securing it.

- Do you know who has access or is making changes to your data?
- Do you have a robust backup strategy, including off-site storage of backups?
- What would happen if your database server failed?
- Do you have up to date and effective anti-virus and firewall solutions in place?

Disaster Recovery

All businesses should have disaster recovery plans and procedures to address catastrophic failures or events affecting your server and/or premises. If your server room is damaged, are you sure that your data is securely protected? Do you have a UPS in place to protect your systems from power outages? Expedio leads the field in monitoring back-up processes and providing your company with "best practice" recommendations, ensuring network infrastructure integrity. The IT specialists at Expedio will customise the most appropriate solution to suit your budget, allowing the upgrading of your systems as your company's database requirements change.

Rationalising your IT network infrastructure with Expedio will protect your company's valuable data assets.
